HORSES & DREAMS meets Australia

Hof Kasselmann in Hagen a.T.W. • April 22 – 26, 2015

David Will wins first stage of the DKB-Riders Tour – Repeater in the Almased Dressage Stadium

(Hagen a.T.W.) „This was our first tournament after a break of eight weeks and a perfect re-start,” David Will from Pfungstadt smiled after having won the first stage of the DKB-Riders Tour in Hagen a. T. W. Will and the grey gelding Colorit accomplished the faultless round in 52.87 seconds, thus burying the hopes of Janne Friederike Meyer (Hamburg) who was in first place for a long time with Goya (53.68).

Will is now the winner of the Grand Prix of Deutsche Kreditbank AG and the first leader of the 2015 ranking. But he has already future plans, because: “The Tour is always important for us.” The native Bavarian has already chosen a horse for the second stage of the international show jumping series, and he will also try to ride the German Show Jumping Derby from May 14 to 17. There will be two qualifiers in between, providing information about fitness and predisposition of the horses in one of the most extraordinary courses of the world.

Janne Meyer has similar plans. She was very happy about the excellent performances of Goya: “My task is always to have him enter the course as relaxed as possible, because he is a very sensitive horse.” Following the second place and 17 points at the DKB-Riders Tour, the question regarding the next stages also arises for the rider from Hamburg: “Well, I am going to ride the first qualifier, if I can sleep well afterwards, also the second qualifier, and if I still can sleep well because I have a good feeling, then I will probably also ride the Derby."

The DKB-Riders Tour is unknown territory for Jamie Kermond from Australia. He jumped to the third place with the grey stallion Quite Cassini which was also his first start at the CSI in Hagen a.T.W. Horses & Dreams has been hosting the first stage of the DKB-Riders Tour since 2011. A collective groan slipped out of the mouth of many spectators when John Whitaker, the legendary British rider who had won the qualifier for the scoring on Saturday, collected one jumping and one time fault. Holger Wulschner (Groß Viegelin), on the other side, jumped into the points with BSC Cavity. The title holder of the scoring and overall winner of the 2014 DKB-Riders Tour finished 11th after two faults in the second round.

Kittel and Deja arrived in the eighties

The 11-year-old Silvano-daughter Deja danced to the music of Stevie Wonder and under the saddle of Patrick Kittel in her only second Grand Prix freestyle, prize of Kartonfabrik Porstendorf GmbH, scoring 80.22%. "I am absolutely happy," Kittel said. The stands were crowded when the 15 best dressage riders celebrated their freestyle presentations in the Almased Dressage Stadium. "That was fantastic, we would like to welcome as many spectators as possible for our presentations to showcase dressage," said the Swedish championship rider. "I really prefer teaching my horses to cope with the exciting atmosphere than to do without one single spectator."

Ingrid Klimke is an all-rounder, and she finished second, like in the opening Grand Prix. "I prefer it the lively way, and this plan succeeded," the rider from Münster said with a smile, happy about the 79.35% for her difficult freestyle presentation with Dresden

Mann. Dorothee Schneider (Framersheim) finished third with 77.77%. She rode Deja's sire Silvano and was particularly delighted about the stallion's highlights, the pirouettes. She was currently riding 12 tournament horses of different age groups. "That's really fun, thoroughly starting at the Federal Championships, then at the Nuremberg Cup, Louisdor-Prize and finally Grand Prix-classes," explained Schneider, and Hagen was the perfect setting for her demands.

Cosmo best young Grand Prix-horse in Hagen

A young man who already shined on Friday won the qualifier for eight- to ten-year-old young Grand Prix-horses, the Louisdor-Prize. The only 20-year-old Sönke Rothenberger won with the eight-year-old Cosmo and 77.44%, followed by dressage queen Isabell Werth and Emilio (74.41%). Third place went to Hubertus Schmidt, scoring 72.53% with Sammy Deluxe, a Sir Donnerhall I-progeny. According to the current rules, the best two horse-rider-combinations of each qualifier shall qualify for the Final in Frankfurt from December 16 – 20.
